

PAT'S LEARNING ANNEX

April 20,2006

This week's newsletter was first written by Tiarnan, Pat and Mo but it wasn't saved and was lost, so Sam the Strange and Anna the Awesome will rewrite it differently!

The week of seventeenth to the twenty-first was very eventful. We had no school on Monday. On Tuesday we went to College Green Park to help clean up glass shards and tree limbs. Because of our hard work, cleaning up and working together, we got on the news. Pat, Clare and Gerrit were interviewed. We worked from 10:30 to 12:30 and then played at the play toy till 1:00. We felt very powerful cleaning up our part of the city after the Tornado!

Yesterday, Wednesday, we got a shock when Steve dropped Mentos into a warm bottle of diet cola. It caused Carbon Dioxide to explode out of the bottle. Making a fountain of cola that went up almost 8 feet. IT WAS TOTALLY AWESOME!

We slaved over note cards the rest of the day. Writing down information for our history fair projects. Tiarnan is doing the Aztecs, Megan is doing the Mayas, Clare is doing Amila Earhart, Gerrit is doing the Incas, Sam is doing the Romans, Ethan is doing Abraham Lincoln, and Anna is doing the Women's Suffrage Movement. We are working hard on creating the very best History Fair ever!

Today was the usual, we went to yoga after which we all felt so limber we were like noodles. Then we went to the library where we attended a part of the radio show "The Big Brain". Clare asked the question "Is there such a thing as pink snow?" She swore that she knew there was such a thing. As it turned out, she was right. Pink snow is caused by dust in the atmosphere when it snows.

IF YOU HAVEN'T PAYED YOUR HOT LUNCH MONEY THIS WEEK PLEASE DO SO FRIDAY!

TOMORROW WE ARE PLANNING TO GO TO WILLDOW CREEK PARK TO FLY KITES. IF THE WEATHER IS BAD WE WILL GO BOWLING.

THANK YOU! BYE BYE!
