Kids, family and friends came to the extravaganza! Our Open House and fundraiser last Sunday was a huge success. We had a wonderful meal, lots of fun and made money for our class trip and scholarship fund. We want to express our heartfelt thanks to the Kline-Woodman family for hosting this wonderful event. We also want to thank Ethan Fox for organizing the auction and all the artists and friends who donated to this notorious night. On top of gourmet food and gracious company, we were proud showing off our dramatic dioramas', ballistic body models and our successful schools. Thanks also to Ethan Kline, Michele, Abe Kline, Jeremy and Ken Schmidt and Patrick and his father, for their help cleaning and preparing the school. An event like this rests on supporters, THANKS to all who came and donated to make this event a success.

A heroic History Fair is in the making! This year we have decided to enact the story of savage slavery and the rugged Underground Railroad. We are well on our way to freedom, as we have finished our crazy quilt squares and have made luminous lanterns which we will use in our stupendous set. We have also been working on planning and writing our super scripts. Magnificent Michele brought in her friend Erin who helped us out. We hope to entertain the Arts Fair audiences with this perfect play. We will pass on details as the event draws near and we are closer to completion.

Patrick the pistol ran around outside the Annex and had plenty of the dynamite dessert. Thanks to his mom he got a gorgeous quilt. The kids had fun, in the Annex, dressing up in the costume clothes. Patrick's dad even put on a dress! Patrick, like the other kids, was proud to show his parents all his hard work on display in the Annex. All in all, it was a fantastic open house.

Hiking hunter returned today for a visit. Pat's Little Angels are enjoying the bright light he brings to the group. Kooky kyler was cranky because he missed hunter. He almost burst into fabulous flames of excitement when he saw hunter walk up the sidewalk this morning. Hunter, for his part, feels extremely excited to be back. He plans to work on cooperating and listening so he can wiggle his way back into this courageous crowd.

Rockets

Risky Rockets are beginning to be Watching them soar through the sky is our dream.

Cutting and gluing is the first part
Putting it together is really an art.

Lighting the fuse

Watching them fly

Coming apart high up in the sky

Perfect parachutes

Bringing our rockets back again.

This wild Wednesday we went crunching into the wild ravine looking for munchy, mighty morel mushrooms. Sadly we found only one morel. Eagle eyed Arianna excitedly announced she had found one of the tasty jewels. Some of us felt like we were lost in the murky middle of the ravine. We went back to school, washed in frigid cold water to make sure we did not get perilous poison ivy. We want to thank Ella's miraculous mom Erin, for accoumaning us on this treacherous trip.

Notes:

We will end this fabulous school year with our annual class trip. This year we are venturing to St. Louis. The trip is set for May 31-June 2. More information on the trip will be in next weeks newsletter. If you have any questions or concerns, please talk to Pat.

If you have not returned your forms for intention to return next year, please do so.
I am trying to plan for next year and need to know who intends to return.
