

Pat's Learning Annex

Newsletter, August 24.2006

It's a good thing this was a short week or we would all have melted walking home under the big fireball. Hurricane Hunter says school has been great fun so far. Koo Koo Kyler's favorite part of school so far has been doing math and reading. Tired Tiarnan found a complete acorn on the way home from the library today. Cool Clare liked that on the very first day we got to write, her favorite activity. We learned all about girl pirates, Vivian has been reading a book about them at home. We are happy to be back at school, says Enthusiastic Ethan.

And now for the announcements:

Special thanks to the parents who helped with the workday, especially Tina and Jack Robinson, John Lanaghan and Ken Schmidt, the school looks great thanks to your efforts.

Thanks also to PLA supporter Jeanne Stoakes for donating ad space on KUNI. Hope you heard our ad.

Pat's Learning Annex is now officially non-profit. That means donations are tax deductible, so if you know of anyone interested in donating to a great cause, be sure to mention us.

If the weather is hot on Friday, we are planning on a swimming afternoon. Please make sure your child brings a towel and swimsuit to school.
