

Pat's Learning Annex

Newsletter- November 2,2006

MURDER AND INFINITLY DANGEROUS EXPERIMENTS IN THE EXTRAVEGENTLY ODD CASE OF DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE!

Mr. Utterson , Mr. Poole and Mr. Langton collaborated to uncover the dangerous and evil experiments of their good friend Dr. Jekyll. We sat on the end of our seats as Pat read the last chapters of this murder mystery. We are now watching the movie of the Hollywood love story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Now we know why Pat says movies are not as good as books. Although Spencer Tracy does a great job with the role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Hollywood creamed the story by turning it into a ludicrous love story set in London.

We continue to work on our own horribly, haunting horror stories. We have shared them with each other, gotten feedback and are working on our final versions. Next week we will report on these creepy, creations.

The Spooky Spook House was a tremendous success. Not many young kids showed up, but it was fun for those who did and for us who creatively constructed that ultimate evening and for those who dared to come. Special thanks to Sue for bringing the fantastic food.

We stretched our bodies yesterday morning with yielding yoga stretches. We did giggling group games, back bending bows and stomach strengthening stretches. Our teacher, James, says we are a great group.

This week for arts and crafts we carved Pat's Perfect Pumpkins. Their fierce and funny faces came alive. We also measured their height, diameter and circumference of these masterpieces.

Signing off,
Creative Clare and Terrific Tiarnan

NOTES:

Tuition and lunch money are due.

We are planning a Grandparent's Day for our November, Thanksgiving Feast. More on that later.